Nonsensical Idea.

A London physician has made the suggestion that condemned criminals should drink river water in its "raw" state, that the effects might be observed. Presumably it would only mean cases of typhoid to be cured at the expense of the state.

AN OLD REMEDY

Beef, Iron and Wine is one of the good old remedies that has outlived a score of patent tonics, reasonable in price, a satisfactory tonic, appetizer and mild stimulant. There is nothing better for that tired, worried, listless feeling or run-down condition of the system after illness of any kind. It tones the whole system, stimulates digestion, gives you appetite, is a good iron tonic for weak, pale children or old people, far more effective than malt extracts or so-called wine of cod liver oil that depend upon their stimulants alone. Beef, Iron and Wine tones and sustains, it assists nature to recuperate, it's a food to the sick and nursing mothers.

Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, prepares our Beef, Iron and Wine. It's always fresh, made from the very best extract of beef, wholesome, properly aged sherry wine and soluble iron.

We don't sell ready-made, hand-made, factory-manufactured Beef, Iron and Wine. We believe and know that medicine should be compounded only by the experienced and scientifically trained.

Try a bottle of our Beef, Iron and Wine as made by Mr. Pfennig, 75c a full pint. Note its wholesome taste and invigorating effect. You will be more than satisfied. Get it at the Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River Sts. The drug store that makes a specialty of drugs.

ELKS HOLD SERVICES IN MEMORY OF DEAD

MEMBERS OF JANESVILLE LODGE NO. 254, B. P. O. E., HONOR. DEPARTED BROTHERS.

TWO ADDRESSES GIVEN

Hon. John M. Whitehead and Rev. Father W. A. Goebel Are Speakers at Sunday Afternoon Memorial.

Members of Janesville Lodge No. 254, B. P. O. E., and their friends held their annual memorial services in honor of their departed brothers at the Myers theatre Sunday afternoon. Exalted Ruler Louis Avery presided and led in the ceremony of the lodge. The music for the occasion was appropriate and beautiful and was rendered by the Baptist church orchestra and the Lotus male quartet. Mrs. John G. Rexford sang a vocal solo, "Jesus Lover of My Soul."

Two addresses were delivered, one by Hon. John M. Whitehead, and the other by Rev. W. A. Goebel. Both spoke with reverence of the departed members of the lodge and both referred especially to the importance of right living.

Senator Whitehead, in his address, declared that mankind was endowed with the building instinct. He pictured the great buildings of ancient times typifying the ambitions, the cravings, the ideals of the early races. Great palaces and public buildings were erected with the hope of permanence, but if destroyed by fire, earthquake, or the ruthless hand of hostile invaders, they were never discouraged but were content to be rebuilt.

This desire to build permanently and well, the speaker continued, has survived throughout the ages down to the present time, each succeeding generation profiting by the experience and example of the others. Now our fine buildings give expression to our highest ideals and ambitions as was the case in former days.

But as we build materially, said Mr. Whitehead, we also build spiritually and mentally. Our characters, like our great temples and cathedrals, are the result of the manner in which we have lived and builded from day to day. And it is not infrequent that we are called to rebuild our moral fiber as we are constantly facing new moral and spiritual problems to which we must readjust ourselves.

This is the character-building which is the important thing in life and consequently care should be taken to use the best materials and to proceed with the greatest possible pains and care. The man who is best fitted to live is best prepared to die.

Rev. Father W. A. Goebel, in his address, emphasized the importance of ever-changing time and indicated briefly the lesson which it cannot but teach. From the cradle to the grave we see about us constant changes, transitions, progressions, of which we are a part, to which we contribute our small share. Our destinies lie in our own hands and to ourselves alone may we attribute the degree of our perfection. Rich and poor, ignorant and wise, saint and sinner, alike face the onward rush of time and each must work out his own fate living as best he can, certain always of judgment when this life is ended.

"What matters it if we are rich and happy in temporal things for fifty of a hundred years, and must suffer sorrows and labors through eternity? What matters it if we suffer and toil for fifty or a hundred years, if we enjoy untold pleasure and gladness through eternity?"

Father Goebel dwelt especially on the certainty of eternity, of the surety of another life when our spirits have left our earthly bodies. Our own good deeds, whether they be great or small, are all that we can take with us by which our stay on earth may be judged. It was therefore plain, said the speaker, to what end we should live in this, our temporal life.

Father Goebel, in beginning his address, said he had known all three of the men whose passing the lodge mourned at this time. He had frequently talked with Mr. Buob, he had visited Mr. Hohenadel in the hospital during his last illness, and had administered the last sacrament to Mr. Stillson in Chicago. He paid a tribute to the memorial service, calling it Christian and as far as it went, Catholic.

CITY SEALER HELMS FILES HIS REPORTS

Presents Record of Work for Last Two Months to City Council and the State Inspector.

City Sealer of Weights and Measures Walter Helms has filed with the city council and with the state inspector of weights and measures a report of his work for the months of October and November. He has gone once over about seventy-five per cent of the work to be done. Scales inspected in this period number 236 of which 233 were sealed and 5 were condemned for repairs. Of these five, one was repaired and sealed, three were replaced with new scales and sealed, and one is now in the shop. Out of the 233 sealed, 214 were adjusted.

One hundred and forty-nine liquid measures were inspected; 136 sealed, and thirteen condemned. Sixteen measuring pumps were sealed, of which nine were adjusted. Thirty-seven lineal yard measures were sealed, and one adjusted and sealed. Twenty-two per cent of all the scale weights were found to be incorrect and adjusted. This is the direct result of having the portable balance purchased last summer, the city never having had such an appliance before. City Sealer Helms inspected and weighed 519 scale weights, of which 408 were correct, and sealed, 105 incorrect and adjusted and sealed, and eight were condemned outright. One wagon scale was found that weighed heavy on one end and on examination a water pipe was found pressing on one of the levers. This being moved the scale worked perfectly.

The inspection of measures used in dry good stores will be postponed until after the holidays. Sealer Helms has measured a number of apple boxes and barrels and found them correct. He has also reweighed a number of packages from grocers and meat markets and found them approximately correct. As a rule he found the merchants very willing to do just any right. He has quite a lot of work in sight but has most of it well in hand.

MANY PRIZES OFFERED FOR SALE OF CHRISTMAS STAMPS

Everything from a school building to the pupils' wearing apparel is included in the open air school offered by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association to the city of ten thousand population or above making the highest per capita sale of Red Cross Christmas stamps.

This prize, which was announced today by Campaign Manager Otto F. Bradley of Milwaukee, is not only the most unique but probably the most valuable ever offered in a Christmas Seal campaign.

The most important item of the equipment, all of which has been donated to the association, is the house, cottage company has offered to give a building suited for the purpose. The sides of the main room are open, but can be closed in case of storm, and a smaller cloak room which will be heated.

Desks have been donated, a cooking range by a stove company, and the cups, plates and other dishes, by a Milwaukee company. Other articles of the equipment are Mackinaw pajama suits, felt boots, mittens, warm caps and coats.

Three open air schools are now in operation in Wisconsin, two of them having been won by prizes in former Christmas Seal campaigns, and one having been established by the Milwaukee schools. This is the first prize to include the building, however, former ones only including the equipment.

CAR SERVICE CRIPPLED ON ELECTRIC RAILWAYS

Breaking of Power Wire Near Rockford Crippled Interurban and City Service.

Service on the interurban railway line between here and Rockford, and on the South Franklin and South Main street lines of the Janesville Traction company, was crippled for several hours this morning by the breaking of a power wire on the interurban near Rockford. Cars on the interurban went out of service about eight o'clock this morning, and simultaneously the service on the two local lines of the traction company was laid up, the power for the cars operated over them being drawn from the interurban company. Cars could be operated up West Milwaukee street to the cemetery and up Milton avenue, but there was a gap between the two lines at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets, where the cars are run by power for the interurban lines. The break was fixed late this forenoon, and the first car, after the damage had been repaired, reached the city about noon, followed shortly afterward by another car which had been stalled when the lines went out of service.

ELECTRIC WIRE BURNED OUT ON MILTON AVENUE.

And Electric Current to Residences on Milton Avenue Was Cut Off For Hour and a Half.

The breaking of a telephone wire, which fell across wires of the Janesville Electric Light company, caused one of their service wires on Milton avenue to burn out about half past six o'clock this morning, and the supply of current to residences on the east side of the river was cut off for about an hour and a half. The cause of the trouble was traced down from the power plant, and repairs were completed about eight o'clock.

He served as a soldier in the Civil War and afterward came to Janesville to make his home. He has lived at the corner of Galena and High streets for forty-five years. Surviving him are six children and twenty-three grandchildren. The children are: Edward F. James, C. Miss Cas, and Miss Mary Gillespie; Mrs. Henry Cullen and Mrs. John Joyce, all of this city. Funeral services will be held from the home, 425 South High street at 8:30 o'clock and services will be conducted at St. Patrick's church at nine o'clock.

Mrs. Mary Paterson.

Mrs. Mary Paterson, widow of the late Matthew Paterson, died at her home, 184 Locust street, at an early hour this morning after an illness of two years. Mrs. Paterson was born in Glasgow, Scotland, April 14, 1826, and came to this city in 1854. She has been a resident of this city ever since. MOTOR FIRE TRUCKS SUITED TO PURPOSE

Chief Henry C. Klein Has Faith in Their Ability to Travel Any Street in Janesville.

Doubt has been expressed by some as to the practicability of motor-propelled fire apparatus for Janesville. It being feared that it would not be able to travel some of the unpaved streets of the city after heavy rains or snows. This fear is not shared by Henry C. Klein, chief of the fire department, who has without question made a more thorough study of motor fire apparatus than any man in the city. He is confident that the motor truck to be purchased by the city will be able to negotiate any grade, and plow through any stretch of mud, sand or snow, that is passable for the horse-drawn apparatus. He is also willing to demonstrate the fact that the chief's automobile is able to pass over any traveled street inside the city. Yesterday this machine, which does not have more than a third of the power of the car to be bought, went through mud far above the tires, running on high gear and with the throttle but partly open. The new machine is to have five-inch solid tires in front, and duplex three and one-half inch tires on the rear wheels. It will give a much greater traction than the average touring car. It will have not less than seventy-five horsepower, fifty per cent more than the Beloit fire truck has. This was given a successful test in the heaviest snow that fell there last winter. It has given trouble but once, and then because of the fault of the operator. Chief Klein has not yet heard of any piece of motor fire apparatus being stuck because of failure of power or traction.

CLINTON CORN SHOW IS A BIG SUCCESS

Nearly One Hundred Exhibitors Show Big Samples of Corn, Grain, Potatoes and Vegetables.

Clinton, Dec. 2.—The corn show held here Saturday was one of the best and most successful that has been held in the State. There were 93 exhibitors and there were 70 varieties of corn, 70 varieties of potatoes, as well as a splendid exhibit of vegetables. The corn exhibit was equal to tables. The corn exhibit was equal to any the judge, Mr. Moore of the state university agricultural department, ever awarded prizes upon and the potatoes were the best he ever had the pleasure of judging. The other grains and vegetables were of excellent quality. The pure bred corn and other grain proved the prize winners in the contest. The free samples all will be distributed to the exhibitors at the Citizens Bank next week and will consist of pure bred barley, corn and oats.

The lectures by Prof. Moore and Hatch were given strict attention by the big crowd which completely packed the hall and a large number were unable to gain admission. This again emphasized the fact of the need of a large hall on ground floor for just such occasions.

DRAMATIC TALENT IS DISCOVERED AT VARSITY.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 2.—Dramatic critics at the University of Wisconsin are expressing great surprise over the remarkable talent displayed by Charles Pollock in the rehearsals of the Edwin Booth club play, "As the Leaves." A year ago Pollock was known far and wide as an exceptionally able football man. An injury led to his retirement from the game, however, and now he promises to win a reputation on the stage. Since his retirement from athletics a year ago, he has devoted himself exclusively to his studies, and it was with difficulty he was persuaded to take part in the Edwin Booth play. Pollock comes from Fargo, N. D.

Yale's big center, Ketcham, will undoubtedly be Eli's next football captain. He has played two years on the team and last year made the All-American. This season he played an even better game. Ketcham's election will take place about the middle of December. He will be chosen without opposition.

The Yale team will not suffer much through graduation this year. It will lose only Bomeister, end; Philbin and Spaulding, halfbacks; Sheldon, substitute end, and Baker, sub halfback. Flynn, punter, and Ketcham will form a splendid nucleus for a winning team next year.

GIBBONS-MCGOORTY BOUT AROUSING MUCH INTEREST.

New York, Dec. 2.—Boxing fans are attaching much interest to the ten-round contest at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night between Eddie McGoorty and Mike Gibbons. In the first place, the followers of the game are anxious to see how Gibbons' acknowledged cleverness will avail against a man of McGoorty's hard-hitting calibre. Moreover, the fight will go a long way towards settling the dispute over the middleweight championship. Most of the critics agree that if the St. Paul boy is able to survive McGoorty's onslaughts during the first few rounds he is more than likely to stay the limit. The fighters have been training faithfully since the articles were signed some weeks ago and both appear to be in excellent physical condition for the battle.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

The city of Racine is just now in the limelight, and stringent measures are being adopted to protect the boys as well as the girls. A Miss Peterson has been doing some detective work, and was called before the council, a few nights ago, to make her report. The Racine Journal says:

"Miss Peterson told the committee that the first time that she had thought seriously of the matter was when the Milwaukee anti-mashing ordinance was called to her attention. Some people thought that they were simply after the boys, but that was not so for the girls were just as bad in many instances. Miss Peterson cited some flagrant cases of mashing she had witnessed on the street. A case was given where two men were on a street car who whistled at high school girls and called out 'Oh you kid!' This was kept up all the way up Washington avenue. The men were forty years old and should have known better."

"Another instance was where she had come down town with girls. Fellows on the west side of Main street made remarks to the girls as they passed. Other cases were given where boys stand in front of places and make remarks. Some girls were accosted not over fifteen years of age. 'This is not fair,' said Miss Peterson. 'Girls fifteen years old ought to be allowed to walk upon the streets without being molested. I saw two young men in an automobile who rode slowly up and down the street and they called to every single girl who passed. An ordinance, in my opinion, would be of as much benefit to boys as to girls. Many of the girls who have been insulted by these mashers have told me that they would like to call a policeman when accosted, but were afraid they would have to appear in court and their names be published in the papers.'"

Mr. Gittings also addressed the committee and recommended the passage of an ordinance similar to one recently passed in Milwaukee, which provides that it be unlawful for any person to improperly and unlawfully accost, oggle, insult, follow, pursue, lay hands on or otherwise molest any person of the opposite sex within the limits of the city, if unacquainted. The penalty is a fine of not less than $10, or imprisonment of not less than fifteen or more than thirty days.

Which all goes to show that housecleaning is not confined to Janesville.

ACTIVITY VERSUS PROSPERITY.

That great activity in business is always an evidence of prosperity, is a mistaken notion, for there are times when heavy expenses absorb profits and make inroads on capital. This is the case today, to quite an extent, as will be seen by the following extract from Henry Crews' financial letter.

"There activity is too often mistaken for prosperity. The increased cost of living has become quite as serious a matter in business life as in private life. Profits in many cases show no appreciable gain as gross results, and in an increasing number of cases profits are declining and rapidly running toward the vanishing point. This is strikingly illustrated in railroad reports, which present relatively poor net returns considering the heavy gains in gross. Upon one of our large systems the ratio of operating expenses to gross earnings had risen from 66.50 per cent in 1910 to 71.54 per cent in 1912. A number of roads show similar results. For this reason the concessions granted to the engineers by the Arbitration Board, though smaller than at one time feared, are particularly significant. They are sure to be followed by corresponding demands from firemen and other classes of railroad help; so that the final demands upon the payroll of the railroads is an unknown quantity and may be serious in amount. In the case of the railroads the situation is aggravated by their imperative requirements for new capital and the higher rates of interest which they will be compelled to pay, thus materially increasing their fixed charges. For instance, the New Haven road had to pay practically 6 per cent for $40,000,000 one year to renew $80,000,000 4 per cent notes, an increase of $80,000 in interest charges."

"Like conditions prevail in many other lines of industry owing to the constantly growing demands of labor for higher wages and the many other increases in the cost of transacting business."

"Only a few days ago one of the oldest fine goods cotton mills in New England showed a loss in operation during the year for the first time in its history, a result caused entirely by the concessions to labor. While this was an extreme case, it is significant of the trend of events. Thirty-six Fall River mills paid only 4 per cent this year, against 5 per cent last year and nearly 7 per cent in 1910. It is not to be assumed that the country is not prosperous. On the contrary, not a few large industrial concerns are still making very handsome profits, but the situation in this respect is decidedly spotty, and it is well to remember that our actual prosperity is apt to be exaggerated or misinterpreted by the activity and volume of trade rather than the margin of profit, the tendency of which is to decline in many lines of industry. Since new capital is only obtainable from profits or savings, the results of such a trend are obvious."

The suggestion in the last paragraph is significant. Capital seeking investment is never influenced by volume of business. The ability to pay dividends is always the requirement. The passing of a dividend weakens credit and destroys confidence. While there is plenty of money in the country it will be slow to invest in doubtful enterprises."

Congress convenes today, and the short session will not attempt much in the way of new legislation. The democratic party will be in full swing, after the fourth of March, and it is better to go slow just now, and hold the new administration responsible for new legislation. President Taft will attempt to clear the decks, as much as possible, but there is bound to be a lot of unfinished business. What he has achieved, during the past four years, will not be fully appreciated, until analyzed in the light of history."

The number of names attached to the recall petitions is variously reported at from two hundred to one thousand. Several signers express regret at their hasty action, and men who are yet undecided, will think twice before arraying themselves against the enforcement of law, for that is what it means. There are no side issues. The question is simply law or lawlessness—not a difficult problem to grasp, and just as easy of solution when it comes to a show-down."

Football is now over, basketball makes its bow, and talk of the spring training season for baseball. Boxing is about a dead sport except in some isolated centers. Bowling has a call but appeals only to a few. So the average sport will have to depend up on the sporting writer's dope for next year for several months, to come."

It would appear as though the Balkan war situation was going to adjust itself without a Europe-wide strife, but you can never tell. Austria is jealous of Serbia, and Russia of Austria. Germany does not feel any too friendly with Italy, and England would be certain to be mixed in when fighting really began."

The senate threatens to hold up President Taft's appointments, preferring to permit the democrats to have the whole of the spoils system all to itself. This is along the line of his defeat by disgruntled politicians November 5th."

While the Janesville high school football team lost its game to Oshkosh, they made a plucky fight of it and brought great honor to the city and their school by their sportsman-like conduct."

President-elect Wilson's idea of having his inauguration in April, although he takes office officially in March, would be like holding Fourth of July in September because it is colder."

Even if the wild goose displays all signs of a mild winter, the average householder will fail to appreciate it when his coal bill falls due."

The shop early crusade has begun in Janesville. It is a good move in the right direction and one that should be encouraged."

Not an Epicurean.

"Are you fond of Tolstoy?" "I ain't never tasted it; these old-fashioned home dishes are good enough for me."—Houston Post.

THE BEST MARKET

THE MARKET THAT IS NEAR AT HAND AND CAN BE REACHED QUICKLY AND CHEAPLY.

The best market for the products of the soil is the home market.

A prosperous manufacturing, trading, and marketing center in the heart of a farming section contributes materially to the prosperity of the farmers.

While the people living in the big cities must be fed, and while enormous quantities of foodstuffs annually are required to supply their needs, the cost of moving products from the farms to the big cities, added to the cost of handling, storing, and disposing of them to the ultimate consumer, must in part be borne by the producer.

With a local market for farm products, or a considerable part of the foodstuffs raised in the community, the farmers secure better prices for everything they raise and the consumer pays less than the big city people.

These are facts of common knowledge and do not require evidence to prove their truth. Every man that knows anything knows that farm land near a prosperous marketing, trading, and manufacturing town is more valuable than land near dead towns.

What is the answer?

The man who does not do everything in his power to help build up his home town is blind to his own interests—that's the answer.

Develop the home market. Do everything in your power to make the trading center of your community a good market town. Co-operate with other citizens and with all classes of citizens about ways and means to make your home town what it should be.

Tell the local merchants what you want and what you are willing to do to secure it. Consult with the local newspaper publisher, the doctor, the lawyer, the banker and hotel keeper as to the best way to build up the town and better the community.

Make the betterment of rural life conditions a subject of community interests, and make work for the improvement in town and country a community job in which all classes of citizens can have a part.

And above all things, keep the money at home to do the work of the community. There are large sections of this country full of holes where money has been thrown away digging for gold and silver and borin gfor oil—money that would better have served its purpose if it had been invested in the communities where it belonged.

"Blue sky" mining speculations and catalogue traders have done more to hamper the growth of local communities than any other causes except local jealousies and lack of enterprise.

So long as millions of good, hard dollars are sent away to support in idleness an army of fake mine promoters, and other millions are used to fatten the bank accounts of enormous corporations engaged in mail order selling, there will be a lack of local development.

Hooper of the State School for the Blind as leader, the December meeting of the Twilight club on Tuesday evening, December 10, promises to be the most notable of its kind ever held in this city, or in any city in the state outside of meeting of some state association. PRELIMINARY TRYOUT FOR DEBATING TEAMS

Two Teams Will Be Chosen for the Annual Debates Held This Winter

Tonight the tryout speeches for the debating teams of the local high school will be heard by the judges, and teams will be picked at that time. There will be two teams to pick, one to study up on the affirmative, and the other to handle the negative side of the question. "Resolved, that in the interests of world peace, the United States begin to diminish its proportional naval expenditures."

The contestants are ready, and some spirited talks can be expected. About twelve or more will enter, some taking up the affirmative side, while the rest will stand for the negative. Stanley Judd is the only member left from last year's group, and he is expected to make a creditable showing.

The judges will be members of the faculty, and Prof. Guy W. Curtis will act as chairman for the evening. The contest will take place in the main room, to give the speakers plenty of opportunity to show their ability.

SELECTING A JURY IN FOURTH ACTION

Case, of Andrew Charters vs. St. Paul Road and Jas. Walsh Now on Trial—Condemn Evansville Land.

Counsel in the case of Andrew W. Charters of Beloit vs. the C. M. & St. P. railroad company and James Walsh, were engaged in selecting a jury for the action, which is the fourth case on trial at the present session of the circuit court. The grounds for the action according to statement of counsel Attorney W. H. Dougherty for the plaintiff were injuries sustained by the plaintiff, an employee of the St. Paul company, through alleged negligence on the part of the company and Mr. Walsh in leaving a wagon too near the right of way of the defendant company. The case does not come under the workmen's compensation act, it was explained, but is purely a negligence case. Attorneys Simons and Walker, C. H. Van Alstine, T. S. Nolan and T. D. Woolsey, have the case for the defendants.

The jury in the action brought to secure the condemnation of certain property in the city of Evansville to be used for street purposes brought in a verdict this afternoon in favor of such condemnation after five minutes deliberation. The proposed street is necessary to secure a public entrance to the Evansville fair grounds and is needed to accommodate property owners in the vicinity who presented a petition for a street. Fred Glum, city clerk of Evansville, and M. L. Paulson were called as witnesses in the case by Attorney R. M. Richmond.

SHOWED UNUSUAL POWER OF RESTRAINING THIRST

Young Man Arraigned in Municipal Court This Morning Claimed He Bought Whiskey Week Ago.

Arthur Collins, a young man who pleaded guilty in the municipal court this morning to being found intoxicated, was a remarkable power of restraining his thirst if the story he told the judge may be believed. Asked where he obtained his liquor, he gave as age as only eighteen. Collins stated that he bought it in Ft. Atkinson a week ago. Although Collins has not been in this court before, on the strength of his yarn, Judge Fifield sentenced him to pay a fine of $4 and costs or go to jail for ten days. He took the latter sentence. Miller, who according to his statement, "has been in court for six years, pleaded guilty to being drunk and as he was not able to pay a fine of $4 and costs, went to board with Sheriff Ransom for seven days.

Peterson of this city will act as his counsel. Dr. Charles Sutherland is the attending physician and Fulton's mother is attending him in the woman's cell at the jail.

THE GOOSE FORECAST FOR A MILD WINTER

Slower Going South—Flying Wedges
Are Few—Warm Winter
Perhaps.

Janesville sportsmen, as well as hunters all the way from the Lake of the Woods to the Atchafalaya bayous are anxiously watching the horizon line for those belated feathered armies, the wild geese of the north. The Canadian honkers are making their way southward this autumn in a leisurely manner. The early arrivals are thinly feathered.

They seem in no haste to reach the gulf coast. Old timers, veteran hunters, weather wise farmers and lovers and students of wild life are unanimous in their predictions that this, the winter of 1912-13, will be mild, warm and without intense cold periods in its earlier months.

Not for many years have the big birds from the Hudson bay and the Saskatchewan been so slow in arriving at their winter feeding grounds. There are years when the November sky is dotted with the flying "wedges" whistling through their wing quills. Just now many a veteran hunter is scanning the sky for the belated flyers. The hunting season is wearing along and still the birds are lingering in the wild rice fields of the north. They are feeding by the million in the lakes and sloughs north of the Height of Land, along the Red River of the North there are armies of these wild birds that have not as yet started for the gulf coast.

See Mild Winter.
It is on this tardiness of the wild geese and the wild ducks that the prophets are basing their predictions that this will be one of the mildest winters in years.

Woodsmen, hunters, plainmen, all dwellers in the open, watch the skies in late fall and early spring. These moving masses of bird life are the barometers that, for them, foretell the probable weather for a week or more in advance.

A flying wedge outlined in black against an orange skyline at sunset means "weather" to the weather-wise. Or on some moonlit night, when the silencing white on fields and fence rows and you step to the door and hear the rustling of swift wings overhead, you may look for a cold wave or maybe the first snowfall. Certainly, the thermometer will drop a good many degrees.

Start With the Ice.
When B. Canadensis starts south with the winds of Medicine Hat beating on his pinions, it is safe to say that the skim ice is filtering over the reedy lakes up north and that the lights of aurora borealis are painting the polar skies. The big "honkers" linger as long as they may.

It is a matter of record in a number of weather bureau reports that the wild geese start their flight south coincident with the first severe winter.

They move from Alberta and the whole northwest country down into the sloughs and salt lakes east of the American Rockies. Many hunters take advantage of these known facts and never start afield till there is a few feet of snow descending on the far northwest.

The wild-goose has always been the favorite bird of the amateur weather prophets. They read the signs of the coming winter in the weight and texture of the feathers, in the formation of the breast bones and even in the coloring and general condition of the big birds.

President Mellen of the New Haven Road.

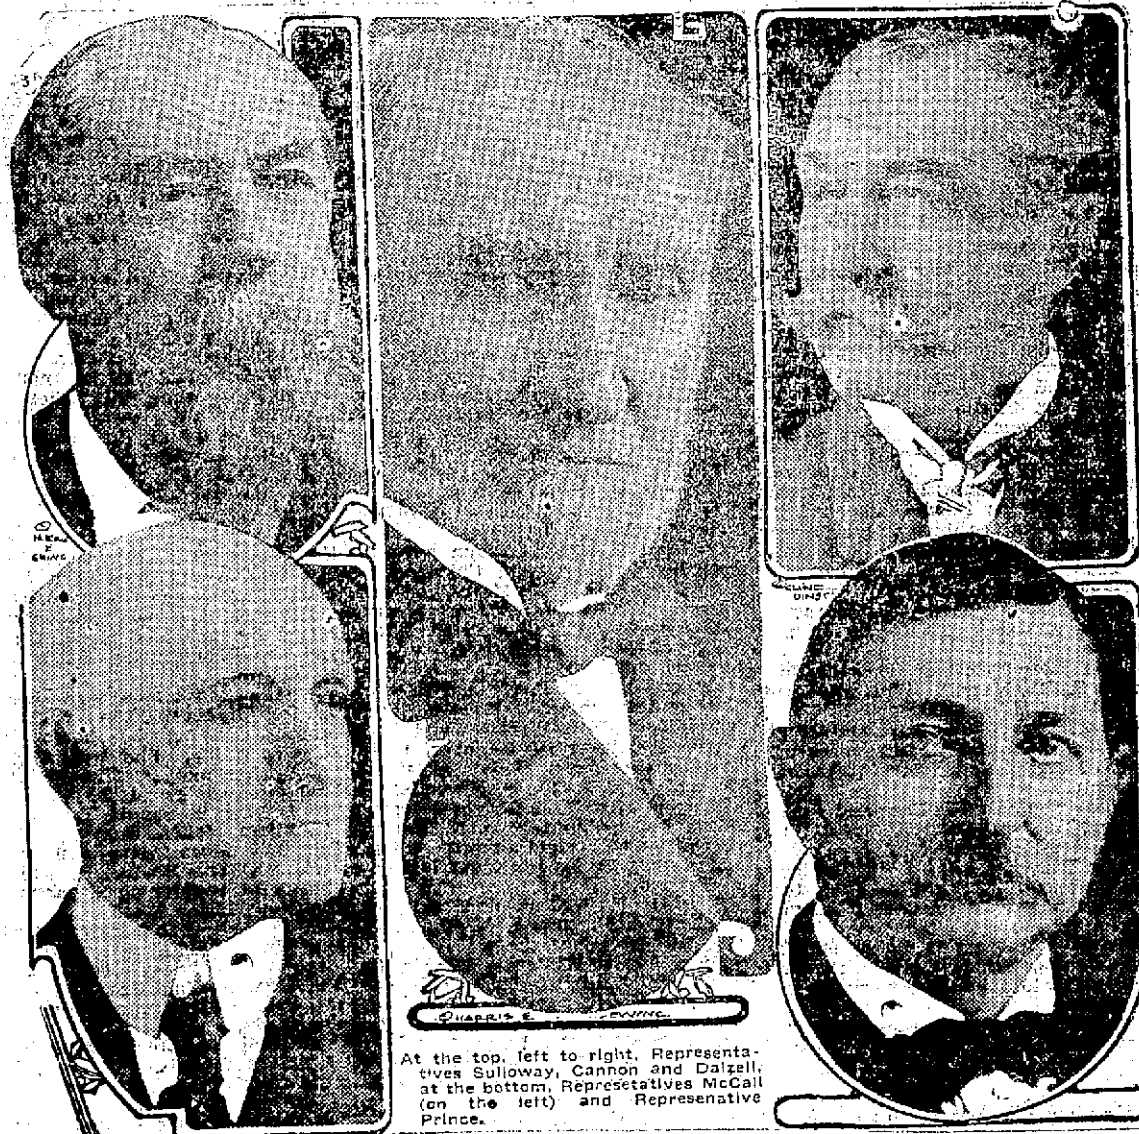

President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad is convinced of the truth of the old saying that "misfortunes never come singly." Steps have been taken looking to the criminal prosecution of the officers and directors of the road for entering into a conspiracy to monopolize traffic in New England. Dissolution of the company as a trust is also in prospect, and the announcement has been made that criminal proceedings will shortly be instituted against those officials of the road who were responsible for the wreck near Westport, Conn., on October 3 last. Since June 3, 1911, the road has had nine wrecks in each of which one or more persons have been killed.

FEW LEFT OF OLD CONGRESS GUARD; "UNCLE JOE" AND MANY OTHERS WHO HAVE SERVED LONG

Washington.—When the gavel falls on the new congress which Woodrow Wilson probably will call in special session next spring a big majority of the old Republican wheelhorses who have guided the destinies of their party and of the nation through four administrations will be missing. They were buried under the landslide of Nov. 5.

Only a handful of the once powerful group that ruled supreme in the house of representatives will be there. The places of others will be filled by young and inexperienced Democrats, who will serve apprenticeships before they will be allowed to take a hand in the important matters of the house.

Most prominent among the fallen warriors of the lower house is "Uncle Joe" Cannon, just rounding out his thirty-eighth year in the harness. He held half the important committee chairmanships before he went to the chair as successor to former Speaker Henderson. More than any of his former lieutenants will this most picturesque figure in the political arena, and most human and best beloved man in the house be missed by his colleagues and by those who sit in the galleries.

Though he has fought many bitter fights in congress, Uncle Joe has always held the respect and the love of his enemies. Those who fought and finally defeated him felt that he was making a sacrifice for many who hide behind him. He bore the brunt of the attack and when he went down to defeat it was with the respect of friend and foe alike.

He is the oldest man in the house in point of service, and when he retires Sereeno Payne, of New York, will be the ranking member. Half a dozen other members of the conservative wing of the Republican party who represent Illinois went down to defeat with their leader, George E. Foss, who represented an Illinois district for twenty years, will be missed. So also will Representative Prince, once chairman of the committee on military affairs, who has served for eighteen years. William B. McKinley, who managed President Taft's pre-convention campaign, is also on the list of those who must soon retire.
Representative Samuel McCall, of Massachusetts, by general consent the most scholarly member, retired after twenty years' service. He is making a fight for the senate.
Representative Daltzell, called the "high priest of protection for home industries," was defeated in the Pennsylvania primaries. He is serving his thirteenth term. "Cy" Bullock, of the New Hampshire, "giant," is another who will be missed. For eighteen years he has championed the cause of pensioners. He is the largest man in the house, physically.
These are but a few of the old Republican standbys who must soon retire. After March 4 but a mere remnant of that once powerful organization known as "the old guard"

PREMIER

Have You Seen The Little "SIX"?

The Car Which Has Established a New Price Basis of Values for High-class Automobiles

Premier is the first of the five leading makers to establish this new price basis among high grade builders.

All five of these leading makers have earned their position in the trade by years of experience and successful building of motor cars which the public has recognized as the best in America.

Not one of the remainder of these five makers has a six-cylinder car AS YET listing within $1200 of the Premier.

What company with a six-cylinder car has a six-cylinder price of Premier has, during the time of the popularity of the four-cylinder cars, been able to successfully market their fours for more than $1600 to $2000?

Taking for example, a $1600 four-cylinder car manufacturer, who now makes sixes as a basis, what do you get besides two extra cylinders for their increased asking price of over $2600, which is an additional $1000.

Do these two cylinders put that car and its construction and material in a sufficiently high quality class to justify the increase in price?

Premier's most up-to-date equipment includes:
Electric Lights, front, side and rear; current supplied by independent generator.
Electric Horn.
Ignition Starter, which spins the motor 150 to 200 revolutions per minute. At least 100 revolutions required in cold weather to lift the gas sufficiently to insure starting.
Tire Inflator with reserve tank furnishing pressure for cleaning upholstery, etc. Convey body with concealed blower. Greasing wheel and roller in the wheel of the dash to carry roll kit and oil which the lighting switch and indicator, the starting switch and oil light feed are mounted.
Tire Carrying Irons, integral with the body and frame, mounted in the rear, distributing the weight between both rear springs.
Clean running boards.
Battery suspended in a metal box in the center of the car, protected and out of sight.
Combination quick detachable and demountable rims.
Castor Oil Tank fitted without removing the cushions. Gravity feed gasoline tank, avoiding the serious objection to the pressure tank.
Turkish Divan upholstered cushions.
Electric lighted speedometer.
Coaxial, not in 1-2 tonner, highest carpet to match in 1-2 next seat.
Folding foot rail.

The buyer of the Little Six Premier gets the benefit of all that the experience of Premier's ten years of motor car manufacturing has taught. This Premier is a beautiful car with all the luxury of riding and equipment the most expert workmen can conceive.

CONGRESS GATHERED TO FINISH SEASON

The publicans alike, began today their last three months of service, before voluntary or enforced retirement to private life.
Sorrow for the late Vice President Sherman overshadowed the spirit of Democratic triumph in the Senate, and tempered the spirit of greetings amongst returning members. Custom decreed that the upper house should adjourn immediately after meeting to day, out of respect for the memory of the vice president; and in contemplation of this, senators were early in their seats.

The outline of the winter's work seemed inextricably mixed, as senators and congressmen met in friendly conferences, with the prospect of tariff revision in the special session that is to assemble under President Wilson, next spring. In the Senate, Republican leaders were slow to admit the certainty of Democratic control on all tariff problems, even with the great increase in membership that is to come with the new Congress.

The reassembling of the house drew together a host of men, long prominently identified with Republican affairs in that body to whom the elections had brought political disaster. Among them were Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, John Dalzel of Pennsylvania, Ebenezer J. Hill of Connecticut and John A. Needham of California, all members of the powerful Ways and Means Committee, and leaders in advocacy and defense of Republican tariffs.

Of the so-called "Old Republican Guard" the force that supported and framed the Payne-Adams tariff law in the opening of President Taft's administration, but two members will remain on the ways and means committee after March 4, Representative Payne of New York and Representative Fordney of Michigan.

In the ranks of the "last timers," also, were Representatives McKinley, Wilson, Foss and Prince of Illinois; Representative Norris of Nebraska, who is soon to step into the Senate; Representative Olmsted of Pennsylvania and McCall of Massachusetts, Republicans who were not candidates for reelection; and Representative Crumpacker whose defeat in Indiana gave the Democrats a solid delegation from that state for the next session of Congress.

The extent of Progressive influence in the winter session is the subject of general gossip at both ends of the Capitol. Of the strong insurgent Republican element in the House, which has voted with the Democrats upon tariff measures during the last two years, many will wind up their service with this session. In the Kansas delegation, Victor Murdock was the only so-called insurgent to return to his seat today with a title for two years. Representative Roosevelt, Young and Jackson, all comparatively new members, went down before Democratic opponents.

The President's message is usually the most important business on the reassembling of Congress. But as the first day is marked by so much haste and confusion of returning senators and members, with their exchange of greetings, the delivery of the message to Congress, and its formal reading to both houses, usually goes over to the second day. This will doubtless be the procedure this year, so that the receipt and reading of the message will go over until tomorrow.

SEALS ON REVERSE SIDE OF LETTERS

Christmas Stamps Must be Put on Reverse Side of Mail, Say Postal Rules.

As the Christmas season is approaching, and many people are planning to send letters and packages with Christmas seals on them through the mails, Postmaster C. L. Valentine of the local postoffice calls attention to the postal rules and regulations concerning all stamps other than postage stamps, affixed to letters, or any form of mail matter which must be placed on the reverse side. Where Christmas stamps are placed on the address side of mailable matter, the local authorities are obliged to return them to the persons who mailed them, or in case the persons are unknown, send such matter to the Dead Letter Office at Washington. The section of the postal rules and regulations regarding the use of all stamps, not lawful postage stamps, are as follows:

"No adhesive stamps, or imitation of stamps, of any form or design whatever, other than lawful postage stamps shall be affixed to the address side of domestic mail matter, but such adhesive stamps, provided they do not in form and design resemble lawful postage stamps, and do not bear numerals, may be affixed to the reverse side of domestic mail matter."

"All domestic mail matter bearing on the address side, adhesive stamps or imitations of stamps, other than lawful postage stamps, will be returned to the sender, if known; otherwise they will be forwarded to the Division of Dead Letters."

Answers to the inquiries with regard to the amount of fourth class mail under the parcels post system, are all expected to be in by tomorrow night, in order that answers may be opened on Wednesday, and the work of estimating the equipment will be needed, may be taken up.

It is a little early yet for the beginning of the Christmas rush of mail through the local office, but already a few of the foreign packages and foreign money orders for Christmas presents, are beginning to come in. In a week or so the foreign orders and packages will be coming in more heavily, and in about two weeks, the Christmas rush of domestic mail will probably be starting.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

BROTHER DUTTON.

A thin face, high brow, long beard, tousled hair, shrewd kindly eyes—that's Brother Dutton.

For twenty-eight years he has toiled in the leper colony of Molokai. Molokai, called by Stephenson a "bracket in the wall," is a lonely island of the Pacific huddled at the foot of a bleak precipice sheer 2,000 feet high.

Brother Dutton was the assistant to Father Damien, going about caring for the sick, tending, teaching, comforting, during the life of the heroic priest, and when the latter died succeeded him.

For more than a quarter of a century this remarkable man has worked at his task, and now comes the news that he has at last become infected with the loathsome, deadly leprosy and must seal his devotion by a slow and lingering living death.

Dutton served through the civil war, enlisted at Janesville, Wis., and made a gallant record. He won distinction and was promoted to the rank of major.

Like his master, he saved others—himself he cannot save.

Shortly following the war he suddenly entered a monastery, where he remained for two years. Disappointment in a love affair is said to have been the reason for his withdrawal from the world.

While in the monastery he heard of the work being done by Father Damien and thereupon dedicated his life to service for the colony.

With that purpose in view he started as an emigrant for San Francisco. From there he shipped for Honolulu, being registered on board ship as a "servant." He says that was "the only occupation he could state."

And appropriately, His is a life of service. Brother Dutton is a different type from Father Damien, who was preeminently a spiritual leader.

Dutton is a man of affairs, hearty, wholesome, genial and gifted as an executive, and has been of great assistance to the "butt ends of humanity" who compose the leper settlement.

In 1908 he succeeded in getting the Atlantic fleet, in its trip around the world, to pass close to the leper island and maneuver as a spectacle for the ravished eyes of the unfortunate.

That was a gracious act of our government, which granted Dutton's petition. And now the brave, helpful brother of the outcasts, beyond the pale with his lepers, is called upon to make the final sacrifice and die the death of a martyr. He is to give the last full measure of devotion to the unclean.

Seldom in the annals of heroic renunciation is there to be found a history of self sacrifice that will match the ministry of the hero of Molokai.

Her Post-Graduate Course

Carbon Hill was proud of Betty Lonsdale. Old-timers could remember when she was a freckle-faced, pig-tailed tomboy, running about with the rest of the Lonsdale brood, but that was before Mrs. Carberry-Cranston took the child to the city and after many years returned her as a shining example of scientific education.

Along with the assimilation of scientific education Betty had lost her freckles and her pigtails. The former had been replaced by a peaches-and-cream complexion; the latter by an elaborate coiffure that was the envy of the more simple women folk who had absorbed the simple rudiments in the district school and then had married and settled down to raise more scholars for the same schools.

Mrs. Carberry-Cranston was a fastidious woman whose peculiar bent was the advocacy of the higher education for what she was pleased to term the "lower classes." It was her theory that as the Indian bureau educated a few bucks and squaws as examples to the rest of their tribe, so might the woman's rights millennium be brought about through the liberal education of young women from the smaller towns. Cyrus Lonsdale had been willing enough to lend one of his numerous progeny to the experiment in consideration of the payment of all her expenses, and so Betty had been taken away a hoyden and returned a fashionable young person.

Martin Staats scowled as he first caught sight of her. In the olden days they had planned to be married when they should be grown up. Martin had plodded along in his quiet way, regarding himself as still engaged to the girl whom he fondly remembered. When he saw the change that the cities had wrought he groaned to himself in despair, and yet, with his inherent persistence, he broached the subject at the earliest opportunity.

"I suppose I'll have to be getting the ring now," he said. "I guess you remember that you were engaged to me before you went away to be polished off."

"Have you not forgotten that boy and girl romance?" she asked with an elaborate assumption of superiority that, to the man at least, masked the yearning that lay beneath, for despite her education and her superficial polish, Betty was still a tomboy at heart and even now she longed for one of those long, delightful rambles through field and wood that she and Martin used to take together.

"I can't forget," said Martin, simply. "I was hoping that you remembered, too."

"I do remember," conceded Betty, "but I also remember my mission. You must realize that this education was given me that I might be of use in the community. It would be unfair to my benefactress to settle down to married life and sink my individuality beneath yours."

"What's the use of knowing how far the moon and sun are from us and who lives in Africa, if you have to live an old maid?" scoffed Martin. "There's Ruth and Theresa and Minnie. They all married, and married well, because they learned how to be good housekeepers. Your ma's a famous cook and she taught the other girls. It's better to know how to make good bread than to know the sort of stuff your head has been filled with."

"That's where you mistake," cried Betty, quickly. "Even in the kitchen education makes me better fitted to meet the problems of life. I know, for instance, the chemistry of breadmaking, the relative nutritive value of the various meats and vegetables. The science of housekeeping is one of the most interesting studies. Mrs. Carberry-Cranston has particularly impressed upon me the importance of communicating to others these important facts."

What Martin said about Mrs. Carberry-Cranston and her ideas does not require repetition here.

But if Betty found learning a satisfactory substitute for love she did not show it in her manner. People regarded her with the awe that her erudition deserved, but she was conscious that beneath the awe was a good-natured contempt for some of her theories. Martin she saw not at all after that first meeting.

Then came a summons to her mother from one of the married daughters and Betty was left to keep house for a week. Her father was away on a business trip and she was left alone in the big house. Her science of housekeeping did not materially aid her in her cooking. There was small comfort of knowing the chemistry of breadmaking when the product was sodden and uneatable and her knowledge of food values did not aid her to transform the most nutritious food into the most appetizing. Before the end of the week she was hungry, dyspeptic and utterly worn out.

Martin found her weeping in the kitchen and took her in his great, strong arms to comfort her.

"Mother thought perhaps you'd like to come over to supper for company's sake," he said when at last the tears had subsided. "She didn't know it was as bad as this, though. I guess, dear, that perhaps your scientific cookery needs a little practical experiment. Are you ready to try it, dear, in a home of your own—of our own?" Betty smiled through her tears.

"If you are willing to let me try," she said, meekly. "It seems to me that in spite of theories domestic science is not of much use without a post-graduate course in matrimony."

EVENING GOWN BEADED CHIFFON

(C)—1912, Morse-Broughton Co.
Here is an evening gown combining beaded chiffon with velvet brocade. The chiffon forms the bodice, sleeve and skirt trimming. The lower part of the skirt is of the brocade, forms train and is caught up at the right side by a bow of black velvet. The skirt and bodice are trimmed with crystal beads and drops, and the double-bell sleeves are edged with the same beads.

To the Rescue.

"I am at present devoting a good deal of time to the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy," said Old Ed. Howe, writing in his own magazine. "Think of the absurdity of it," he continues. "We do. Our notion of nothing to get excited about is this Bakespeare controversy."

Very Peculiar Pursuit.

The queer thing to a woman about politics is how men don't have to buy new hats to wear at their meetings.—New York Press.

Explained.

"Pop, why do they call a man a pinhead?" "Because when he attempts to penetrate any idea his head won't let him go very far."

Theater

William Winter, a veteran among veteran dramatic critics of New York has said of "The Thief" which will be seen at Myers Theatre Saturday, Dec. 7, matinee and evening, with Miss Marion Sherwood in the leading role: "It is a good play, well acted and should run six thousand nights in New York and after that I sincerely hope that C. S. Primrose will present 'The Thief' in every hamlet, village and city in the United States. It is a play with a purpose. It is a play husbands should take their wives to see; one that wives should take their husbands to see and one that every unmarried man and woman in the country should see."

"The Thief" belongs in the category of problem plays. The problem is the question, "What would have done under the circumstances?" The story is well known. It tells the tale of a colossal love; a love so great that a woman stoops to criminality in order that she might keep her husband. That is the story in a nut shell. The problem comes in the fact that the woman's husband forgives her and in so doing the leading question is asked.

Willing to Do Anything.

A little girl, now a famous artist, long ago was caught using her crayons on Sunday. As the forbidden joys were taken from her she sobbed out: "Alamma, do let me have them. I'll draw a church an'—a—graveyard if you will!"

English "Stump" Speech.
A correspondent, "Old Briney," sends us the following specimen of frenzied stump oratory: "Feller blokes! Thanks ter th' gov'ment, yer got yer d'minishin' wage, and yer little loaf, an' all that. Wotcher got ter do now is ter go fer devil-ootion and local anatomy, an' go it blind!" (Loud cheers.)—London Globe.

Shopping in the Ozark District.
"You keep sportin' goods yur, don't you?" inquired a frazzled looking citizen from out on Rumpus Ridge, addressing the proprietor of the hardware store at Polkville, Ark. "Eh-heh, that's what I loved. Well, what I was aimin' to git was a straight jacket for a crazy man."—Kansas City Star.

This is Stein-Bloch's message to you:

"Time and money are put into the making of our Overcoats. We spare neither fabric nor workmanship. We tailor into them style. They fit and they are warm and comfortable. Because we make many and systematize the making, the cost to you is little as compared with the tailor, who may mean well, but lacks the resources and the experience. Who but the careless spenders buy any but Stein-Bloch ready-for-service Overcoats?"

Take upon yourself to come to our modern and well-lighted store, and say "STEIN-BLOCH" to us. We will fit you in an Overcoat. You, and your family and friends, will rejoice.

Practical Frenchwomen.

The Frenchwoman makes a point of understanding the business either of her husband or her employer, and is seldom content to be a mere clerk or typewriter. It is maintained that the reason woman's influence is more potent in France than in England is because of the Frenchwoman's greater capacity in a practical way.

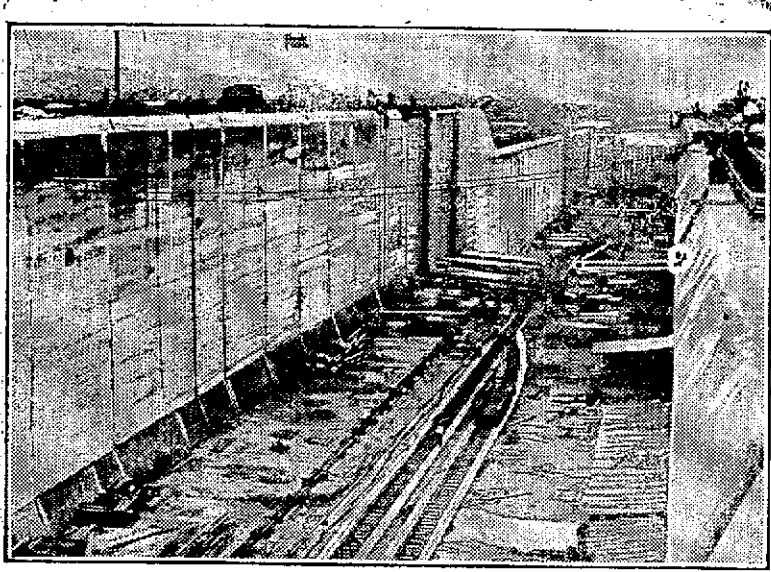

Didn't Concern Him.

The tramp did away with a sand which handed to him by the latest farmer wife he had favored with a call. She had wrapped the sandwich in a section of newspaper, which the tramp scanned with the eye of carelessness characteristic of his kind. "My idea of nothin' to get nutty about," he remarked to himself, after glancing at a market report, "is the advance of $2 a ton in the price of car wheels."—Judge.

Preserve Self-Respect.

THREE LEVELS OF THE PANAMA CANAL.

The Panama Canal will never be so interesting as it is to-day, just before the water is let into the great artificial channel. The gigantic locks which will raise or lower the largest steamers in the world are practically complete. When filled up, the main sections of the Canal will rise 35 feet above the sea level. To raise the great ocean steamers a series of three locks will be used, and since a ship 1,000 feet in length can be handled, the construction obviously must be on a gigantic scale. A remarkable photograph is reproduced herewith, showing the three levels of the great Gatun locks. Each of these locks is 1,000 feet in length and 110 feet in width. The greatest steamer afloat, carrying thousands of passengers, will be raised and lowered, exactly as the ordinary canal boat. This photograph, which was taken just before the great steel gates were placed in position, was made by a tourist on one of the West Indies cruises of the S. S. Moitte of the Hamburg-American Line. It shows the bed of the locks, with the railroad tracks used in their construction still in place. The Gatun locks open directly into the harbor of Colon, at the Atlantic end of the Canal.

Worth of Education.

Quintilian recommends all parents properly to educate their children, advising them to train their offspring carefully in learning good manners and virtuous exercises, since we commonly retain those qualities in age which we cultivated and possessed in our youth.

Emblem of Charity.

Love, kindness, toleration, whatever charity may be, or if she is compounded of them all, I know not. All that I do know is that she is rare, and that her emblem on a sailor's arm is as drawn between the anchor and the cross.—Cunningham-Graham.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE STORY TELLERS.

DID YOU ever pause in your enjoyment of some wonderful novel or absorbing short story to think to yourself what a tremendous debt we all owe to the story tellers?

The other evening I knew at seven o'clock that I was to receive some important news at ten. "How can I ever wait these three hours?" I said to myself, and the first hour, during which I wandered about the house and tried to occupy my mind with household duties and with conversation, the seconds seemed like minutes.

Finally I sat down with a book; at first I was restless and inattentive, but soon the great master whose story I was reading had laid hold on my mind; in a few moments I had forgotten to watch the clock, and in a few moments more it was quarter of ten, and my vigil was almost at an end.

From how many cares, how much impatience, what sorrows and what anxieties the great story tellers free us all; not indefinitely, of course, but for a precious little while that makes us able to go back and take up the burden afresh.

Just think of the hours of tedious waiting for trains and appointments and all the rest, which the story tellers have beguiled in your life.

Think how absolutely unendurable your days of convalescence from sickness would have been without the story tellers.

Think of the periods of sorrow and anxiety into which the story tellers have brought moments of blessed distraction.

I know a man who sat and read voraciously all the morning long the day his beloved mother was to be buried, read even to the very moment of the funeral. Some people thought him heartless but I knew he was far from that, and I thought him very wise to try to put his mind on something that would keep it from going over and over the thought of his loss. I doubt if he knew much of what he read. It simply served to numb him a little and for that blessed numbness he had the story teller to thank.

God bless the story tellers.

"To have done things worthy to be written," says one of the greatest of them all, with that wonderful modesty that helps to make him a beloved figure, "is a dignity to which no man makes any approach who has only written things worthy to be read."

It is very daring for me to differ with Sir Walter Scott, and yet I must, for it seems to me that in many cases he who has written things worthy to be read has conferred a benefit on humanity more enduring and more widespread than that which comes from many great deeds.

God bless the story tellers. We could do without many wiser and greater men more easily than without them.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man of pleasing appearance, age 23, and am engaged to a woman of 28. She is worth $450,000 and while I have told her I care for her a great deal, she knows I am after the "coin." I am very popular with the girls and always have been, but I wish to travel, and I don't believe there is any such thing as marrying for love. Do you? SAMUEL.

Neither you nor your fiancé would feel flattered if I should tell you what I think. You are exercising neither common sense nor love in this marriage, and no marriage can be a success without either. What you want is a mother, Samuel. Ask your fiancé to adopt you as her son. Then you can keep on being popular with the girls.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man of 21 and deeply in love with a girl of the same age whom I met three months ago. She said she likes me very much and lets me see her whenever I want to, but I do not know whether she is joking or not.

She is going home shortly and asked me to come and see her. I regret to see her go and do not know what to do to prevent her going. Would she marry me on such short acquaintance if I proposed to her and would it be a good step to take for our future happiness? It would break my heart if I would lose her. Is it proper for a girl to kiss a fellow?

Ask her permission for you to write to her, and make it a point to accept her invitation to visit her. Let her see that you like her a great deal, but don't propose until you are better acquainted.

No; I don't think it proper for a girl to kiss a fellow unless she is engaged to marry him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a girl of 16 and have just returned from a visit to a large town where I met several nice boys. Would it be right for me to write to any of them? (2)—I have just past two too late for me to be out with a perfectly good boy, at night? BRIGHT EYES.

(1)—If a boy wants you to write to him, he will write to you first, and ask you to answer his letter. There is no harm in a friendly correspondence if you discuss the letters with your mother. (2)—My dear! I am surprised that you ask such a question. A little girl of your age should be at home and in bed by 10 P. M. at the latest. You will be a homely old woman at 20 if you keep such late hours now.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Rabbit Potpie.—Put on rabbit to boil. Slice two good-sized potatoes and cook until done. Now take one quart flour, one teaspoon salt and enough water to make a stiff dough; roll out thin, cut in long strips, put in Kettle with rabbit, cook 20 minutes and serve all together on a large platter. This is fine.

Apple and Celery Salad.—Equal parts chopped apples and celery, one cup hickory nuts or English walnut meats, a few white grapes with seeds taken out. Mix all together, pour over mayonnaise dressing with tablespoonful peanut butter.

Raisin Puffs.—A delicious dessert used in place of plum pudding. The recipe as given me by an old English lady:

Two eggs beaten very light, four tablespoons sugar, one-half cup of butter, one cup seeded raisins, one cup sweet milk, two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder sifted with flour. Steam in buttered cups 50 minutes. This can be served with hot sauce or whipped cream.

Hot Sauce.—Butter size of egg, three tablespoons sugar, one egg, heaping tablespoon flour; mix all together to make smooth paste, then add boiling water until right thickness. Flavor with vanilla, lemon juice or brandy.

Christmas Date Pudding.—One cup sweet best sifted chopped fine, one cup sour cream, one egg well beaten, one cup brown sugar; mix thoroughly. Into this stir one cup white flour and one cup graham flour, which have been sifted with 1-2 teaspoons soda. Then add one cup dates chopped fine, one cup chopped nuts. Steam three hours

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

and serve with any sauce. This is very rich and delicious and far superior to plum pudding. Neufachetel bonbons are delicious served with salad. They are formed of cheese rolled in pistachio nuts and decorated with halves of pecan meats.

Winter Window Screen. For those who like fresh air in the sleeping rooms at night:

Take adjustable window screen, open it out the size of window and tack piece of thin unbleached muslin in to cover screen. Raise window and put screen under in the usual way. It keeps out the wind and you will be surprised how much dust and smoke it will take up, so keeping room more pure. I hope some of the day readers will try this.

Candies. Having experimented with a number of fudge recipes, found none quite equal to this for deliciousness and economy:

Chocolate Fudge.—Two cups granulated sugar four tablespoons grated chocolate or cocoa.

Mix one heaping teaspoon of cornstarch with one-half cup sweet milk, mix all together and cook until boiling, then add one tablespoon butter. Cook until it forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water.

Remove from fire, add flavoring desired, also chopped nuts or dates, prunes or raisins. Beat until thick and creamy, pour on plates to cool.

A teaspoon or so of cornstarch added to any kind of fudge adds toward its deliciousness, making it smooth and easily cut.

MEALS FOR TWO.

There are many dishes which a small family cannot enjoy without waste, but there is such a variety to choose from, one need not find the diet monotonous.

Soups of many kinds may be made in small quantities and are just as good as larger amounts.

Potato Soup.—Take half a cup of sliced potato and add to a cup and a half of scalded milk in which has been cooked a slice of onion and a stalk of celery. Melt a tablespoonful of butter, add a tablespoonful of flour; stir into the hot soup. Season with salt and pepper and cook until the soup is smooth. A tablespoonful or two of tomato catsup may be added for variety or chopped parsley or chives may be sprinkled over the top of the soup just as it is served.

Angel Drop Cakes.—Heat the whites of two eggs until stiff, add a quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, a fourth of a cup of sugar and a few drops of vanilla. When well mixed fold in a quarter of a cup of flour. Drop on unbuttered tins or bake in gem pans.

Mock Bisque.—Take half a cup of strained tomato, one and a half tablespoonfuls of butter mixed and cooked with the same amount of flour; add a cup of hot milk and cook together. Add the milk to the tomato, to which has been added a teaspoonful of sugar and a pinch of soda. Season to taste and serve hot.

Coffee Cream.—Scald a fourth of a cup of milk, add a half cup of boiled coffee. Soften a teaspoonful of gelatin in a little water. Beat the yolk of an egg and add two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Add to the coffee mixture and cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly. When thick, add the white of egg well beaten, a pinch of salt and a few drops of vanilla. Turn into a mold after adding the gelatin, and set away to mold. Serve with cream.

WARNING AS TO ENEMA.

Heat lowers muscular tone, relaxes and frees circulation. In many conditions it is beneficial, but in others it may be injurious, especially when long continued. Especially is this true of the routine practice of using the enema to relieve constipation. Valuable as an emergency measure and when used in moderation during the fast, it becomes in many cases as ineffective and harmful as the constant use of drugs for the same purpose. Permanent relief from constipation is possible only by following the natural methods of living; and if one has allowed a chronic state of constipation to become established, time and patience are required to overcome it. The use of bran bread or of fresh ground bran, especially with rice, has been recommended. The coarse part of the grain is the natural stimulus for peristalsis.

Peripatetic Christmas Presents

PHOEBE was sitting on the floor looking at a heterogeneous collection of articles about her.

"There is no reason whatever," she said to herself, "why I shouldn't send these forth on a second voyage of Christmas cheer. They are every bit as good as when I got them. And I am sure it is much better for them to be useful than to lie stacked up on my shelves. And it is much more sensible for me to sit comfortably here and apportion them around and fix them up than it is to wear myself out chasing through the shops for something no better."

She gazed reflectively a while at the melee.

"I could take that safety pocket and embroider a monogram on it and send it to Alice. She's going South after Christmas, and travelers are supposed to rejoice over safety pockets."

She picked the safety pocket up and laid it to one side. "I'll never use it if I live to be as old as Methuselah."

"I could touch up that embossed leather writing tablet with gold and give it to Minnie. A college girl always finds use for such a thing."

She picked up the portfolio, gazed at it tenderly a few minutes, and also laid it aside.

"I've got one Barye lion and I don't want two about the house. This is no lion's den. I could send that to Jean for her studio."

And Jack would just love that antique-looking paper cutter. It doesn't match my desk set. And besides, I have one. There isn't a thing here I couldn't find a delighted owner for. It certainly does seem foolish not to pass them on. Maybe they would keep on going and come back to me in the course of time, having made a good many people happy in their progress. Because knowing that a person has thought of you is really the chief thing about a Christmas gift. I wonder if something in the nature of a peripatetic Christmas gift couldn't be evolved. It would save a lot of work and worry. Each year, it could just move on to a new owner."

She sat a while longer gazing at the things about her. Then she suddenly jumped up, gathered them all together, and put them back into her closet.

"It's awful," she said, "to be a combination of sentiment and tradition. I'll go on, I suppose, moving those things about and dusting them till the day of my death. Meanwhile, I'll enter the scrimmage down town and probably get nothing half so nice. Perhaps some day I'll screw up enough courage to send them to some missionary, and he'll wonder what he's getting safety pockets for, when he hasn't any money, and paper knives and jewel cases and pieces of sculpture. But that's a woman's way."

Then with a worried look, she picked up her Christmas list and started down town.

REDUCTION ORDERS WILL HAVE EFFECT ON LOCAL SHIPPERS

Railroad Commission Cuts St. Paul Rates on Sand and Gravel—General Order Reduces Rate on Boxes Out of Milwaukee.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., Dec. 2.—The Wisconsin railroad commission cut the rates on crushed stone, sand and gravel on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road today from 20 to 30 per cent. Recently the commission rendered a decision in the case of the Waukesha Lime & Stone company recommending reduced rates. In the commission's decision on the rehearing of the case, it was recommended the rates be made general throughout the state by the carriers involved. This recommendation was followed by the Chicago & Northwestern; and the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie also, though not a party to the case, put into effect the commission's rates on these commodities. The St. Paul road, however, did not adopt the distance rates proposed by the commission, and various shippers on that line of railway complained informally to the commission.

Because of this neglect, the commission upon its motion gave notice of a hearing to the St. Paul road, which followed by today's decision by the commission. It is estimated the decision will mean a saving of thousands of dollars annually to shippers of sand, gravel and stone.

Orders a Refund.

The commission also gave its decision in the case of Ferley Lowe & Co., against the Wisconsin & Michigan Railway company, ordering a refund of $254.50 for excessive freight charges. During the months of May and June, the company shipped building from Jarvis, Hanley, Bude, Carleton and Sycamore to Bagley Junction. The distances involved varied from ten to sixteen miles and the rates charged were the regular distance tariff rates applying on lumber and articles taking lumber rates. The petitioners complained these rates were excessive, and in ordering the refund today the commission directed the railway to assist from charging the rates previously exacted and to fix a new schedule based on hundred-pound shipments applicable to the towns in question.

A decision also was rendered in the case of the Eastern Bond and Lac County Telephone company, fixing a new schedule of rates. The commission finds the present valuation of the plant to be $1,115, and that the cost of reproducing the existing plant anew would be $16,671.

Another Reduction.

A general order reducing freight rates on shipments of wooden packing and boxes from Milwaukee to Wisconsin points was issued by the railroad commission today against the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul,

WISCONSIN CLIMATE MOST DIVERSIFIED

Growing Season as Long as in Georgia in This Section and as Short as in Alaska in Northern Regions.

The climate of Wisconsin and its relation to agriculture is made the subject of a new bulletin of the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment station written by Professors A. R. Whitson and O. E. Baker. The most important temperature condition in relation to agriculture, it says, is the length of the growing season (measuring the number of days from the first killing frost in the fall to the last killing frost in the spring). The length of time from frost to frost varies as widely in Wisconsin as in any other eastern state, ranging from 175 days at Dubuque to 55 days on the Iron ranges along the Michigan border. Thus, the length of the frostless period at Dubuque, Beloit and Madison is as long as in the higher hills of northern Georgia, or the valley of Virginia, while 75 days is as short as that of Saskatchewan, eastern Oregon, or Alaska.

"The combined effect of elevation and latitude influence upon the length of the growing season is quite striking," the bulletin continues. "Whereas the five Michigan shore stations at Racine, Milwaukee, Sheboygan, Manitowish and Kewaunee show an average season of 171 days, the five highland stations at Burlington, Mt. Horeb, Hillsboro, Hatfield and Neillsville, lying at corresponding latitudes, average only 50 days. Similarly, the average growing season for Duluth, Superior, Bayfield and Ashland is 135 days, while the average of the northern highland stations at Solon Springs, Hayward, Rittenburg and Vandesare, though located further to the south, is 95 days."

In the northern portion of the state, the length of the growing season gradually is shortened until the headwaters of the streams are approached, until a minimum of seventy-five days is reached in Vilas county. Descending to the Lake Superior shore, the growing season increases rapidly in length, reaching 126 days at Ashland, 135 days at Bayfield, and probably 150 days on the Apostle Islands.

The authors raise the question whether Wisconsin is becoming drier, it being the belief of many, based partly on the dry summers of 1908 and 1910, that the rainfall in this state is gradually decreasing in amount. Aside from an extraordinarily rainfall in the decade 1875 to 1885 recorded at Beloit, Dubuque and Madison, and corroborated by the combined records of Milwaukee and St. Paul since 1814, there is no adequate evidence of a diminishing precipitation, conclude the authors.

Big Mail Pouch Will be Forwarded to His Home at the North Pole on Tuesday December 17.

Santa Claus has not forgotten his little friends who read the Gazette. NO MORE PAYMENTS TO ROAD BUILDERS

Until Successor to Late County Highway Commissioner Jones Has Been Named by County Board.

Contractors who are now engaged in building state aid roads in Rock county can not receive any further payment for their work until a successor has been named to the late County Highway Commissioner S. S. Jones of Clinton. All order books in the hands of the town chairman have been called in by Commissioner No. 6 on highways under whose direction the work will be carried on until a new road commissioner is named which will be at the January meeting.

There are a number of miles of road built under the state aid plan which are still uncompleted. The work will be continued under the immediate supervision of the town chairman, however, and will be rushed as much as possible before cold weather sets in. Heavy rains during the fall have made grading difficult.

Several aspirants to the Highway Commissioner's office have already entered the field according to report. The salary is $1,000 and traveling expenses.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

CORNS.

(By Howard L. Raab.)

THE corn is a painful attachment to the human foot which is always just where it can be bumped with great freedom. You can always tell a person who has corns by the furtive and distrust manner with which he handles his feet in a street car.

Our early ancestors did not wear corns and could stumble against a chair without yelling in high staccato accents. This was because they wore sandals without shoes except on festive occasions. Like quarterly meetings or the Old Settlers' reunion. If it were not for the pernicious habit of breaking in shoes four sizes too small for the victim, the deceptive soft corn never have been heard of. The American Indian never knew what a corn was until he became civilized and traded a quarter section of land for a pair of hob-nailed boots.

People begin to make the acquaintance of corns about the time they first succeed in screwing a pair of broad, beaver tail feet into a double A last. This treatment produces very satisfactory results, and will make it impossible for a man to move about the room in his stocking feet without first piling the furniture on the bed. Yet we never hear any complaints about corns in China, where women lace their feet with the aid of a power windlass. You can travel all over Africa, too, and not meet with a corn doctor except in the form of a soup. This should cause us to hesitate before laying the profane kind of civilization upon the cornless heathen of foreign climes.

The feet would be much more useful and ornamental if corns had never been invented. After a man has had a fervent corn stepped on three or four times in succession by somebody who has no sense of direction, he will feel like backing into a secluded corner of the conservatory and resting them on the bosom of a rotted plant.

The bunion is an elder brother of the corn, and grows wherever it can get a foothold. You never can tell when a bunion will spring up and destroy the classic outlines of a daisied foot. Some people come down to old age without having a bunion or a low suit, and then wake up some, moving to find their right foot decorated with a pink protuberance which shadowed their declining days with deep melancholy and shuffling pains.

STOMACH SOUR? GOT INDIGESTION ALSO?

"Pape's Diapensin" Will Make Your Disorder Stomach Feel Fine in Five Minutes. Time It!

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas, and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

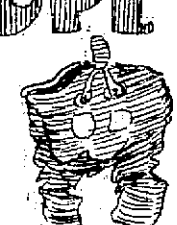

A full case of Pape's Diapensin costs only fifty cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases. Then you will understand why dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapensin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapensin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for indigestion or sourness or any other stomach misery. Get some now; this minute, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion.

Janesville Daily Gazette, December 2, 1872.—Another Offer: In Saturday's Gazette was published a proposition from A. C. Bates and Peter Myers in which they offered to furnish one half the capital for a $30,000 paper mill in this city, provided other parties would support the balance. Captain Ira Milmore responds by saying that he will give the land necessary for a site for the mill and will furnish 1,400 inches of water at five dollars per inch and will take stock to the amount of $8,000 therefor, leaving but $1,000 to be paid in cash.

The New Depot: The wood work for the new passenger depot arrived Saturday night from Chicago and is now on the grounds ready to be placed in position. The foundation has been completed and our depot will soon take upon itself a form more substantial than the airy castles of the past.

Brief Items: Three weddings are contemplated for this month.

The scarcity of wood continues. A few loads brought in today were quickly taken.

But one wagon passed over Johnson road yesterday forenoon and that was drawn by a sick horse, its owner walking. Notwithstanding the scarcity of horses oxen have not been brought into general use. But one ox team has appeared on the streets.

There is snow on the ground, but not enough for good sleighing.

It is indeed a wondrous thing, this modern telephone, that will across the distance bring a speaker's lightest tone. Sometimes I sit and contemplate its weird, surprising plan, and bless the scientist so great who gave this boon to man. And then again I want and how about his many faults, and tear the blamed thing from the wall, and on the pieces of wall, my mirthful lips are stricken dumb, sealed are the founts of song, when cent-

To get back to our fathers' ways would fill our souls with aches! A message then would take three days, that now a minute takes! And then again it seems to me that life would be more gay if all the telephones that be were

DECEMBER 2

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY.

Material things will cause you anxiety, and you may lose much through some unnoticed detail. Pleasant friendships will be formed and the young will become lovers.

Those born today will be likable, but too pleasure loving for material success. A wandering disposition will have a tendency to keep them from serious influences. Therefore, what they are taught when very young will be of greatest importance to them.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE

Checkmated
(Synopsis of preceding chapters: Harold Noblydun loves the beautiful Rachel Sumatra for herself alone, although she has nine million dollars in her own right and has inherited a half-ownership in her father's earl-factory. Rachel reciprocates his love, but fears that he may not be able to support her in the style to which she is accustomed, as he makes only $8.50 a week as assistant sporting editor of a woman's magazine. Raymond Sneratem, foreman of the sporting-room, sees Rachel one day when she comes to have a chat with Harold, and determines to win her, by fair means or foul; preferably foul, for Sneratem is a detestable villain. In a loud voice he tells young Noblydun that his salary will henceforth be reduced to $6.25 a week. In despair, Rachel turns away from her lover and Sneratem offers to take her home. Noblydun, suspicious, follows them, clinging to the back of their taxicab until he hears the popping of a cork and Sneratem's voice threatening to chloroform Rachel unless she will promise to marry him and sign over her fortune. At this moment there is a terrific crash, for the taxi has plunged down an embankment.

Chapter 677 D
The policeman on the beat pricked up his ears, rapped his night stick on the pavement to call for assistance, and yawned.

"Guess I'll move to Chicago," he murmured, "for I cert'nly am ill o' noise."

An Economist.
A certain lighthouse keeper, newly appointed to a post off the west coast of Cornwall, was told by the coast-guard officer that complaints were made against him.

"For what?" was the inquiry.
"Why," replied the officer, "they say that your lights do not burn after twelve o'clock at night."

"Well," was the reply, "I know they don't, for I put 'em out myself. I thought all the vessels had got in by that time, and I wanted to save the oil."

A Mistake.
"You treat those boys like they were so many kittens," said the disgusted bachelor uncle to the fond young mother.

"No, she doesn't," snapped the spinster aunt, "it would be better for them if she did, for then they would get a good licking every day."

The Ultimate Consumer.
A little pig to market went
And met a fate most dreary;
As potted meat in pan was sent,
To make ye boarder merry.

SAVING A DESPERATE MAN.
"Why did you get engaged to Harry? You swore that you would never, never, have anything to do with such a man."
"Yes, dear, I know I did. But—well, I wouldn't have accepted him if he hadn't made such a perfectly dreadful threat."
"Oh! That old stall about rushing out and committing suicide."
"No, worse than that."
"But all of those threats are bluffs. I suppose he said he'd kill the next man who called on you, eh?"
"No, no! I've heard that before. Dearie, he threatened that if I did not accept him he'd go and propose to you. And I believe he would have done it, too—he was perfectly desperate."

The Industries.
"I am looking for good industrial sites," said the stranger in a western town. "Have you any mills in this place?"
"Yes," answered the native, "two running all the time."
"Indeed? What are they?"
"The gin mill and the divorce mill."

On Duty.
"Now, then, young man," demanded the park policeman, "why do you hang around this park every day?"
"I have been assigned to get an interview with the first robin," the cub reporter explained.

The Dilemma.
"Is there any chance of a young man's escaping loss the first time he goes into Wall street?"
"Well, it is a toss-up if he escapes the bulls and a tight squeeze if he gets away from the bears."

Not True.
"It is not true about the old saw that an ill wind blows nobody good."
"How do you make it out?"
"If it is an ill wind, it must blow good to the doctors."

Restoring Value to Rubber.
People using articles made of rubber that frequently lose their elasticity through oxidation may restore the material to its original condition by a simple process. Soak the part in a mixture of one part of ammonia to two parts water. This is particularly well adapted to the restoring of rubber bands, rings and small tubing which are ready to become dry and brittle.

Electricity and Selenium.
It has been discovered that electrical resistance of selenium changes with moisture and the metal has been incorporated in a new hygrometer.
